1 I. INTRODUCTION

2 There is a “strong federal policy in favor of enforcing forum-selection clauses,” and a 3 party seeking to avoid such a clause bears a “heavy burden of showing the sort of exceptional 4 circumstances that would justify disregarding” it. Yei A. Sun v. Advanced China Healthcare, Inc., 5 901 F.3d 1081, 1084, 1090 (9th Cir. 2018). Plaintiffs fall far short of meeting that bar. The 6 forum-selection clauses to which they agreed require transferring thirteen bellwether Plaintiffs’ 7 cases to the districts where the alleged incidents underlying their claims occurred.¹

8 Plaintiffs’ opposition leaves much of Uber’s transfer argument uncontested: Plaintiffs do 9 not dispute that (1) Uber’s Terms of Use (TOU) constitute a valid and enforceable contract which 10 each Plaintiff executed (Mot. 6-8); (2) the TOU committed each Plaintiff to litigate “any dispute, 11 claim, or controversy arising out of or relating to incidents or accidents resulting in personal 12 injury (including but not limited to sexual assault or harassment claims)” in “the state or federal 13 courts in the state in which the incident or accident occurred,” (Mot. 4 (quoting PTO 15 at 6)); 14 and (3) Plaintiffs venued their pleadings in violation of that TOU provision (Mot. 1-2). Nor do 15 Plaintiffs attempt any showing that some “strong public policy” of California or risk of 16 “depriv[ation] of [their] day in court” would justify the extraordinary and exceptional step of 17 judicially negating their forum selection clauses. Mot. 11-13.

18 Instead, in a brief that exceeds this Court’s page limits by nine pages, see General 19 Standing Order R. I.C, Plaintiffs offer several meritless arguments for disregarding their valid and 20 enforceable forum selection clauses. Every one of these arguments should be rejected.

21 First, Plaintiffs argue that another TOU provision, in which Uber agrees to honor elections 22 by users claiming injury from sexual assault or sexual harassment to pursue those claims in 23 litigation rather than arbitration, renders the forum-selection clause for claims pursued in 24 litigation ambiguous and inapplicable. But the TOU cannot bear that untenable reading, which 25 would violate multiple established rules of contractual interpretation. Uber never asserted 26 (publicly or in the governing TOU) that users could choose any court forum they desired—only

27

 28 ¹ See Dkt. 3020 (Mot.) at 3 (table listing cases requiring transfer under 28 U.S.C. § 1404(a)).

1 that Uber's arbitration clause could be waived by survivors of sexual assault and harassment.
 2 Uber's TOUs say the exact opposite—that incidents must be brought in the state forum where the 3 incident occurred.

4 Second, Plaintiffs assert that Uber overreached in bad faith by conditioning the use of its 5 services on users' agreement to sue where they are injured. But no authority supports the notion 6 that Uber overreached or acted in bad faith by conditioning services on a clause that applies the 7 same choice-of-forum principles that courts typically do—i.e., a preference for the place of injury 8 in tort litigation. In fact, even under the standard Section 1404(a) forum non conveniens analysis, 9 the place of injury is generally seen as the most appropriate forum considering that the forum has 10 the most interest in the dispute, as that forum-state's laws would apply, Sauerwein Decl. Ex. A, at 11 13, and the witnesses and evidence are likely located in that forum. See Mot. 13; see also Doe 12 WHBE 3 v. Uber Techs., Inc., 102 Cal. App. 5th 1135, 1149-64 (2024) (affirming stay and 13 dismissal under forum non conveniens). This is especially true for tort matters and where 14 transportation network companies are heavily regulated at a local level.

15 Third, Plaintiffs suggest that this is the rare and extraordinary case where the Rule 1404 16 public-interest factors negate enforcement of a valid forum-selection clause. But Plaintiffs 17 concede that one of the factors cuts against them, and muster no persuasive argument on the other 18 two, which also favor transfer.

19 Lastly, Plaintiffs' argue that some of them should be excused from the TOU for certain 20 Plaintiff-specific reasons. Each of those contentions also fails:

21 Timing of Execution. It does not matter that some Plaintiffs agreed to the TOU after they 22 were allegedly injured, because the forum-selection clause—by its express terms—applies to all 23 incidents occurring before or after the agreement was signed.

24 “Uber Eats.” The TOU's plain terms govern Plaintiffs' “access or use” of “any content 25 and services” related to any service on Uber's multi-sided digital platform, so it similarly makes 26 no difference whether Plaintiffs were first prompted to agree to Uber's TOU on the Uber Rides 27 app or the Uber Eats app.

1 Age. One plaintiff who allegedly agreed to the TOU while still a minor (A.R. 1) cannot 2 avoid the TOU because she has not disaffirmed her contract with Uber.

3 “Too Vague.” The forum-selection clause’s requirement that Plaintiffs must litigate in 4 the State where their injuries occurred is not “vague” when applied to Plaintiffs whose rides 5 crossed state lines (WHB 318 and C.L.).

6 Guest Rider. Finally, A.G., who signed the TOU but was allegedly assaulted during a 7 ride called by her ex-husband, is still bound by the forum-selection clause that she signed.

8 In sum, the forum-selection clause is valid and enforceable as to each of the thirteen 9 Plaintiffs in issue, and Uber’s transfer motion should be granted as to all of them.

10 II. ARGUMENT

11 “When the parties have agreed to a valid forum-selection clause,” the “district court 12 should ordinarily transfer the case to the forum specified in that clause.” Lee v. Fisher, 70 F.4th 13 1129, 1143 (9th Cir. 2023) (en banc). None of Plaintiffs’ arguments warrants an exception to that 14 basic rule.

15 A. The Forum-Selection Clause Unambiguously Governs Plaintiffs’ Claims.

16 By agreeing to the forum-selection clause, each Plaintiff agreed to litigate “any dispute, 17 claim, or controversy arising out of or relating to incidents or accidents resulting in personal 18 injury (including but not limited to sexual assault or harassment claims)” in “the state or federal 19 courts in the state in which the incident or accident occurred.” Mot. 4, 8-10. That language 20 clearly and unambiguously prevents these thirteen Plaintiffs from litigating their cases in the 21 Northern District of California, far from their places of injury.²

22 Attempting to conjure “ambigu[ity]” where none exists, Plaintiffs argue that different 23 language in the TOU included as “part of the ‘Arbitration Agreement’”—providing that “[w]here

24
 25 ² Plaintiffs briefly argue that they lacked “adequate notice” of the forum-selection clause. Opp.
 26 10 & n.5. That argument is insubstantial. As the case that they cite explains, “[a] person who 27 signs a contract has a general duty to read it,” and a “forum-selection clause is not invalid simply because it appeared as part of a form-contract or because the plaintiff did not specifically negotiate those terms.” Canters Deli Las Vegas, LLC v. Banc of Am. Merch. Servs., LLC, 2019 WL 3017662, at *5-6 (D. Nev. July 10, 2019); see Mot. 6-7 (collecting additional cases).

1 your claims are brought and litigated to completion ... in a court of competent jurisdiction, Uber
 2 agrees to honor your election”—“controls over” the forum-selection clause. Opp. 10-11 (quoting 3 Sauerwein Decl. Ex. A, at 4) (ellipsis in original). In other words, Plaintiffs contend that the 4 quoted sentence from the Arbitration Agreement (Section 2)—which addresses an “election” 5 between arbitration and litigation—means that Uber would consent not only to users’ election to 6 litigate rather than arbitrate, but also to users’ selection of a non-compliant litigation forum, in 7 violation of the forum-selection clause. That reading is untenable for multiple reasons.

8 First, Plaintiffs’ reading ignores the structure of the contract as a whole and would 9 impermissibly render the forum-selection clause null and superfluous. See Schertzer v. Bank of 10 Am., NA, 109 F.4th 1200, 1208 (9th Cir. 2024) (California “contract interpretation principles” 11 consider, inter alia, “whether a proffered interpretation: ... gives effect to all of a contract’s 12 provisions or renders some superfluous” and “is supported by reading the contract as a whole”); 13 Cal. Civ. Code § 1641 (similar). Consider the structure: the phrase “honor your election” appears 14 in subsection 2.b, titled “Exceptions to Arbitration,” in which Uber promises that “this Arbitration 15 Agreement shall not require arbitration of ... individual claims of sexual assault or sexual 16 harassment....” Sauerwein Decl. Ex. A, at 4. Separately, the conspicuously labeled “Choice of 17 Forum” subsection of Section 7 (“Other Provisions”) embodies a different promise—this one by 18 the user—that dictates where any litigated claims will be brought, i.e., in the district where the 19 injury occurred. Id. at 13-14. Plaintiffs argue that “honor your election” in subsection 2.b means 20 that sexual assault victims may not only choose between arbitration and litigation, but also may 21 choose “where to sue Uber” if they opt for the latter. Opp. 11. But that interpretation would 22 nullify the Choice of Forum provision specifically applicable to claims for “personal injury 23 (including but not limited to sexual assault or harassment claims),” Sauerwein Decl. Ex. A, at 14, 24 which unambiguously requires users to litigate any such claims in the place of injury. Plaintiffs’ 25 reading cannot supplant Uber’s structurally coherent reading, which gives effect to both 26 provisions: the parties agreed to defer to Plaintiffs’ “election” between arbitration and litigation, 27
 28

1 but with any litigation to occur in the place of injury. Schertzer, 109 F.4th at 1208.³

2 Second, Uber’s plain-language interpretation better coheres with the principle (endorsed 3 by Plaintiffs) that “specific terms control over general ones.” Opp. 11 (quoting Richards v.
 4 Centripetal Networks, Inc., 709 F. Supp. 3d 914, 920 (N.D. Cal. 2024)). The clause in Section 7 5 titled “Choice of Forum” represents the parties’ specific agreement as to the choice of forum for 6 disputes brought in “courts,” as the contract itself makes clear. Sauerwein Decl. Ex. A at 13-14 7 (personal injury claims “shall be brought exclusively in the state and federal courts in the State in 8 which the incident or accident occurred.... (emphasis added)); see also Georgia-Pac. v.
 9 Officemax Inc., 2013 WL 5273007, at *8 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 18, 2013) (“a heading or title” can 10 “assist in interpreting a contract”). That specific and clearly labeled language prevails over 11 Plaintiffs’ strained and overbroad reading of the general phrase “honor your election” in the 12 separately labeled “Exceptions to Arbitration” clause to “supersede[] ... the forum-selection 13 clause,” which expressly dictates where any litigation claims must be brought. Opp. 11.

14 Finally, Plaintiffs cannot salvage their argument by invoking a prior version of the TOU 15 or public statements by Uber. Plaintiffs are correct that a prior version of the TOU did not 16 contain a forum-selection clause. Opp. 4. But they do not contest that clause’s addition validly 17 amended the contract (which already included “honor your election” in the separate Arbitration 18 Agreement section, see Opp. 1-2). And the public statements on which Plaintiffs rely are simply 19 irrelevant: they predate the forum-selection clause by three years, see Opp. 3-4, 14, and therefore 20 shed no light on the meaning of the forum-selection clause that Uber later added. Indeed, the 21 public statements are inadmissible in any event: they are extrinsic to the TOU, and under 22 California law, “extrinsic evidence is not admissible to add to, detract from, or vary the terms of a 23 written contract.” Appling v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 340 F.3d 769, 777 (9th Cir. 2003).

24

25 ³ Indeed, Uber’s public statements in Turning the Lights On—which Plaintiffs reference 26 repeatedly—only confirm that the revisions to the Arbitration Agreement, including the phrase 27 “honor your election,” deferred to survivors’ choice of dispute-resolution process (whether “in a mediation where they can choose confidentiality; in arbitration, where they can choose to maintain their privacy while pursuing their case; or in open court”), not geographic location. Dkt.
 3264-3 at 2.

1 The forum-selection clause “says what it means and means what it says,” Simmons v.
 2 Himmelreich, 578 U.S. 621, 627 (2016): all personal injury claims against Uber, including for 3 sexual assault or harassment that users like Plaintiffs have elected to litigate rather than arbitrate.

4 B. The Forum-Selection Clause Is Not The Product Of Fraud Or Overreaching.

5 Plaintiffs’ fallback unenforceability argument similarly fails. Ninth Circuit precedent 6 requires Plaintiffs to identify an “exceptional reason” or “extraordinary circumstances” to 7 disregard a forum-selection clause. Yei A. Sun, 901 F.3d at 1088. Drawn from M/S Bremen v.
 8 Zapata Off-Shore Co., 407 U.S. 1 (1972), the Ninth Circuit’s test authorizes disregard of such a 9 clause only (1) if there was “fraud or overreaching”; (2) if “enforcement would contravene a 10 strong public policy of the forum” or (3) if trial “in the contractual forum” would “for all practical 11 purposes” deprive plaintiffs of their day in court. Id. at 15, 17-18.

12 Plaintiffs spend much of their brief resisting this Ninth Circuit test. They insist that, 13 because “the clause is contained in a form consumer contract,” this Court should apply a more 14 freewheeling analysis, asking more generally whether enforcement would be “unreasonable under 15 the circumstances.” Opp. 6-10. But they cite no cases declining to enforce contractually valid 16 forum-selection clauses for reasons other than the three set out in Sun and M/S Bremen. And 17 many of the cases that Plaintiffs cite only reiterate the three-part test. See, e.g., Thomas v.
 18 Facebook, Inc., 2018 WL 3915585, at *2 (E.D. Cal. Aug. 15, 2018) (“There are three 19 circumstances under which enforcement of a forum selection clause would be unreasonable”); 20 Huddleston v. John Christner Trucking, LLC, 2017 WL 4310348, at *3 (E.D. Cal. Sept. 28, 2017)
 21 (listing the same three circumstances); Laasko v. Xerox Corp., 566 F. Supp. 2d 1018, 1021 (C.D.
 22 Cal. 2008) (“Fundamental fairness is determined by three considerations....”). Nor are Plaintiffs 23 correct that the test set out in Sun and M/S Bremen does not apply to “consumer contracts,” Opp.
 24 7: the Ninth Circuit regularly applies “the directives of the Supreme Court in Bremen” to online-25 consumer-contract cases. See, e.g., Doe I v. AOL LLC, 552 F.3d 1077, 1083 (9th Cir. 2009); see 26 Tompkins v. 23andMe, Inc., 840 F.3d 1016, 1030 (9th Cir. 2016) (similar).

27 Plaintiffs cannot satisfy that test. They do not argue that enforcement would contravene 28

1 any “strong public policy” of California. They do not (and obviously could not) suggest that trial 2 in the place of injury would deprive them of their day in court. And while they purport to invoke 3 “improper overreach,” Opp. 13-15, they fall far short of the requisite showing. They do not 4 contest that they voluntarily agreed to Uber’s TOU. They do not claim (as in the sole Ninth 5 Circuit case finding a dispute as to fraud or overreaching) that they were not “permit[ted] … time 6 to read the agreement” or told that any adverse consequences would follow from “failure to sign 7 it.” Petersen v. Boeing Co., 715 F.3d 276, 283 (9th Cir. 2013). If Plaintiffs preferred not to use 8 Uber’s services rather than agree to the forum-selection clause, they were entirely free not to use 9 those services. And while Plaintiffs argue that they should not be expected to “read terms and 10 conditions” and that it is unfair of Uber to have such terms, Opp. 13, they concede that 11 “prevailing law” rejects that argument, id. at 14. See, e.g., Molina v. Scandinavian Designs, Inc., 12 2014 WL 1615177, at *3 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 21, 2014) (“[O]ne who accepts or signs an instrument, 13 which on its face is a contract, is deemed to assent to all its terms, and cannot escape liability on 14 the ground that he has not read it.” (collecting cases)).

15 Plaintiffs’ other arguments (purported unreasonableness, inadequate communication, and 16 “bad faith”) are all unmoored from fraud/overreach or any other recognized “exceptional reason” 17 for non-enforcement. Yei A. Sun, 901 F.3d at 1088. The Court therefore need not consider them.
 18 And even if the Court were to address those arguments, it should reject them. Plaintiffs have no 19 principled basis, for example, for their argument that it is somehow unfair, “unreasonable,” or 20 “bad faith” for Uber to require Plaintiffs to sue where they are injured instead of directing all 21 litigation to its home forum. Opp. 12-13. Seeking to litigate sensitive sexual-assault claims 22 where the relevant evidence is likely most readily available is not in any sense unfair. See Mot.
 23 13 (noting that key witnesses, including the independent drivers, reside outside this Court’s 24 subpoena authority). And it hardly disadvantages Plaintiffs. To the contrary, injured parties often 25 prefer to litigate where they are injured, especially if they also reside there. See Ehrman v. Cox 26 Comm’ns, Inc., 932 F.3d 1223, 1226 (9th Cir. 2019) (“a party bringing suit in its own State’s 27 courts might (seem to) enjoy . . . a home court advantage against outsiders”). Plaintiffs 28

1 themselves admit this. Opp. 5 (acknowledging potential “home-town” advantage).

2 Uber’s forum-selection clause also mirrors the general legal principles governing forum 3 selection and choice of law. “[T]he local interest in having localized controversies decided at 4 home” should be considered in every forum analysis under Supreme Court precedent. Atl.
 5 Marine Constr. Co. v. U.S. Dist. Ct. for W. Dist. of Tex., 571 U.S. 49, 62 n.6 (2013). And 6 conflict-of-laws doctrine has long recognized that “[t]he state with the ‘predominant’ interest in 7 controlling conduct normally is the state in which such conduct occurs and is most likely to cause 8 injury.” Castro v. Budget Rent-A-Car Sys., Inc., 154 Cal. App. 4th 1162, 1180 (2007); see 9 Hernandez v. Burger, 102 Cal. App. 3d 795, 802 (1980) (similar). The forum-selection clause in 10 Uber’s TOU reenforces these well-established principles, providing that the forum with the “local 11 interest in having localized controversies decided at home” will be the forum for trial. Atl.
 12 Marine, 571 U.S. at 62 n.6. Plaintiffs’ argument that the forum-selection clause somehow 13 violates “the parties’ settled expectations, or that “[n]o Plaintiff could read this clause and 14 evaluate how its inclusion should affect her decision to ride with Uber,” therefore lacks merit.
 15 Opp. 9. There is nothing “unforeseeable” about requiring users to sue where they are injured, 16 which mirrors the typical forum-selection rules applicable even without a contract clause. *Id.*⁴

17 C. The Public-Interest Factors Do Not Overcome The Forum-Selection Clause.

18 Plaintiffs also briefly assert that, even if the forum-selection clause is valid and 19 enforceable under Sun and M/S Bremen, this is an “exceptional case[]” where the Rule 1404 20 public-interest factors nevertheless warrant denying transfer. Opp. 23-24. It is not.

21 To start, Plaintiffs fail to address one of the three public-interest factors: “the interest in 22 having the trial of a diversity case in a forum that is at home with the law.” Atl. Marine, 571 U.S.
 23 at 62 n.6. That factor plainly favors transfer to the forums where the alleged injuries occurred, 24 see Mot. 14, and confirms that this is not the “rare[] case” where the public-interest factors alone 25 could “defeat a transfer motion.” Yei A. Sun, 901 F.3d at 1088.

26 ⁴ As explained above, supra at 5-6, the premise of Plaintiffs’ unreasonable communication 27 argument against enforcement fails: that Uber changed the TOU over time does not render the 28 clear terms of the forum-selection clause “ambiguous.” Opp. 10-12.

1 Plaintiffs misstate the law concerning a second factor, “the local interest in having 2 localized controversies decided at home.” Atl. Marine, 571 U.S. at 62 n.6. As already explained, 3 the place of the alleged injury is the forum with the greatest interest in the matter. See Castro, 4 154 Cal. App. 4th at 1180 (“The accident and Castro’s injury occurred within Alabama’s borders, 5 thus giving Alabama a presumptive interest in controlling the conduct of those persons who use 6 its roadways....”). Plaintiffs’ single case citation—In re Clorox Consumer Litig., 894 F. Supp. 2d 7 1224, 1237-38 (N.D. Cal. 2012) (cited by Opp. 24)—is inapposite. The court did not deny that 8 local interest but merely declined to undertake “a detailed choice-of-law analysis” in the context 9 of motion to strike class allegations. The “local interest” factor fully aligns with Uber’s forum 10 selection clause and favors transfer of Plaintiffs’ cases here.

11 That leaves “the administrative difficulties flowing from court congestion.” Atl. Marine, 12 571 U.S. at 62 n.6. As this District is one of the nation’s busiest, this factor also favors transfer.
 13 Mot. 14. Plaintiffs assert that it would be more convenient for trials to stay in this District 14 because the Court “has stated it will oversee trial in each of the bellwether cases, no matter where 15 that trial occurs.” Opp. 23. But the Court made clear that it would first decide the venue issues 16 on their merits. See Feb. 28, 2025 Hr’g Tr. 10:17-18 (“If I ultimately rule that the venue is 17 elsewhere, then I will go.”). And even if traveling to try cases ultimately were to prove too 18 burdensome for the Court, that is not a reason to keep the cases in this district—it is a reason to 19 transfer the cases to their home forums, where other able district judges can oversee their trials.

20 At bottom, Plaintiffs’ arguments are inconsistent with the MDL statute’s design.
 21 Congress determined that cases should be consolidated for pretrial purposes but tried across the 22 country. Mot. 14; see 28 U.S.C. § 1407(a). This Court has experienced both sides of that 23 dynamic, having tried a bellwether case transferred here from MDL proceedings in the Northern 24 District of Ohio. See City & Cnty. of S.F. v. Purdue Pharma L.P., No. 3:18-cv-07591-CRB. So 25 when Plaintiffs claim that the cases should remain in this District because this is a “mature 26 MDL,” Opp. 24, they defy Congress’s decision about how MDLs are supposed to proceed.

27
 28

1 D. Plaintiffs' Case-Specific Contentions Lack Merit.

2 Plaintiffs fare no better when they argue that individual Plaintiffs' circumstances warrant 3 departure from their forum-selection clauses.

4 1. Irrelevance of WHB 407, 1876, and 823's Date of Consent

5 Plaintiffs contend that the forum-selection clause does not apply to three Plaintiffs (WHB 6 407, 1876, and 823) who were allegedly injured prior to agreeing to the clause. Opp. 15-16.⁵ But 7 the clause's text could not be clearer: it governs all disputes arising out of Uber's services, 8 "whether before or after the date you agreed to the Terms." Sauerwein Decl. Ex. A, at 14 9 (emphasis added). Plaintiffs do not dispute the plain meaning of that text, to which they agreed.

10 Plaintiffs urge the Court to ignore that plain contractual language, arguing that applying it 11 "retroactively" would be "neither reasonable nor fundamentally fair." Opp. 15. But as they 12 recognize, all pertinent authority rejects their argument. In both the forum-selection-clause and 13 arbitration contexts, courts regularly apply contracts retroactively where their terms so provide.
 14 Mot. 10 (collecting cases). And while Plaintiffs complain that Uber cited only "an unpublished 15 Second Circuit decision" applying this rule to a forum-selection clause rather than an arbitration 16 agreement, Opp. 16, multiple additional cases confirm the rule for forum-selection clauses, see,
 17 e.g., Sarah v. Google LLC, 2023 WL 6618266, at *4 (W.D. Mich. Oct. 11, 2023); Warwick v.
 18 Schneider Nat'l, Inc., 2020 WL 5891407, at *2-4 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 5, 2020); Marullo v. Apollo 19 Associated Servs., LLC, 515 S.W.3d 902, 904-06 (Tex. Ct. App. 2017). Plaintiffs cite no basis for 20 departing from that consensus.

21 One Plaintiff, WHB 823, additionally argues that the forum-selection clause should not be 22 enforced against her because she had filed a state-court complaint against Uber before agreeing to 23 it. Opp. 16. But Plaintiffs cite no case suggesting that a forum-selection clause becomes 24 inoperative simply because a plaintiff has initiated litigation. The only authority they cite, Mezyk
 25 v. U.S. Bank Pension Plan, 2009 WL 3853878 (S.D. Ill. Nov. 18, 2009), declined to apply a

26
 27 ⁵ Although WHB 407's alleged injuries occurred after Uber added the forum-selection clause to 28 the TOU, Plaintiffs are correct that it does not appear she signed the clause before the incident.

1 forum-selection clause because plaintiffs “were not reasonably notified” that the defendant had 2 amended an ERISA plan, Mezyk, 2009 WL 3853878, at *4. Here, by contrast, WHB 823
 3 received notice of the TOU through an in-app blocking screen and affirmatively indicated her 4 consent to the TOU. See Mot. 7; Sauerwein Decl. ¶¶ 6-7, 30-31, Ex. R. And even if there were 5 some general rule that a forum-selection clause does not apply after a case is filed, Plaintiffs do 6 not claim that WHB filed this federal suit—as opposed to a distinct state-court action—before 7 agreeing to the forum-selection clause.

8 2. The clause applies regardless of which Uber app prompted the agreement

9 Plaintiffs next argue that Plaintiffs Dean, T.L., A.R. 1, and WHB 1898 and 1486’s forum-10 selection agreements should be ignored because Uber’s records show those Plaintiffs agreed to 11 the relevant TOU through the Uber Eats app. Opp. 16-20.⁶ The plain text of the TOU refutes 12 Plaintiffs’ arguments, even if these five users agreed to the TOU when they opened Uber Eats.

13 As another court that faced the same issue has recognized, the TOU repeatedly states that 14 they govern all of the services Uber provides through its platform, including rides facilitated by 15 the Uber app. See McGinty v. Zheng, 2024 WL 4248446, at *1 (N.J. Super. Ct. App. Div. Sept.
 16 20, 2024) (per curiam) (“Prior to requesting an Uber platform, such as Uber Rides or Uber Eats, 17 the user must agree to Uber’s Terms of Use.”). The very first sentence of the contract reads:
 18 “These Terms of Use (Terms) govern your access or use … of the multi-sided digital marketplace 19 platform (‘Uber Marketplace Platform’) and any related content or services (…as more fully 20

21 ⁶ Plaintiffs suggest that the Court must conduct an evidentiary hearing on whether these forum-22 selection clauses apply to other services besides Uber Eats. Opp. 17 n.11. On the contrary, 23 because the text of the TOU unambiguously applies to all of Uber’s services, see infra at 11-12, 24 “extrinsic evidence cannot be received,” see supra at 5, no hearing can be needed. See Golden Gate Way, LLC v. Enercon Servs., Inc., 572 F. Supp. 3d 797, 812-13 (N.D. Cal. 2021); see also In re Heller Ehrman LLP, 2010 WL 2653301, at *1 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. July 1, 2010) (“[c]ontract 25 interpretation is a question of law[.]’ … [T]he contract term at issue here is unambiguous, and the 26 court can resolve the dispute without an evidentiary hearing.” (quoting Doe 1 v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., 572 F.3d 677, 681 (9th Cir. 2009))). Plaintiffs improperly invoke Petersen v. Boeing Co. to 27 support their request for an evidentiary hearing. That case required a hearing where the plaintiff introduced “specific evidence sufficient to demonstrate” one of the Bremen/Sun exceptions to enforcing a valid forum-selection clause might apply (discussed supra), i.e., “that he would be wholly foreclosed from litigating his claims.” 715 F.3d 276, 281 (9th Cir. 2013). As explained above, Plaintiffs do not introduce evidence sufficient to invoke any such exception here.

1 defined in Section 3).” Sauerwein Decl. Ex. A, at 3 (emphasis added). And Section 3 (“The 2 Marketplace Platform & Services”) further defines “services” to include “services rendered by 3 Uber that facilitate your connection to independent third party providers, including drivers and 4 restaurants … for the purchase of services or goods, such as transportation.” Id. at 6. Finally, the 5 TOU contain numerous clauses specific to riding with independent drivers—even when presented 6 via Uber Eats. See, e.g., id. at 9 (“If you request a ride option with a car seat....”); id. (“[Y]ou 7 may be allowed to bring a small animal, such as a dog or cat, on a ride requested....”); id.
 8 (“[S]ervice animals are generally permitted to accompany riders without extra charge.”); id. at 11 9 (“Uber may charge you a fee if, during your use of the Services, you have caused damage to a 10 vehicle....”); id. at 13 (Uber not liable for “improper installation or use of child restraint systems 11 for guests on rides requested through the services”). In short, no reader could doubt that the 12 agreement covers—just as it says—“any” of Uber’s services, including ride-facilitation. And 13 each Plaintiff here alleges she was “the owner of the Uber account used to request the relevant 14 ride.” Dean, Am. Compl. ¶ 6; A.R. 1, Am. Compl. ¶ 6 (similar); W.H.B. 1898, Am. Compl. ¶ 6; 15 W.H.B. 1486, Am. Compl. ¶ 6 (similar).

16 Plaintiffs’ contrary argument rests on a single case, McKee v. Audible, Inc., 2017 WL 17 4685039 (C.D. Cal. July 17, 2017), which has no application here. McKee considered whether a 18 plaintiff who used an Amazon Echo device agreed to be bound by Audible’s terms of use. Id. at 19 *10-11. The court thought not, because the contractual language did not clearly state that plaintiff 20 agreed to Audible’s conditions of use and no “reasonable consumer registering the Amazon Echo 21 expects to be presented with terms of use governing his or her contractual relationship with 22 separate corporate entities, let alone one he or she has never dealt with.” Id. at *11 (“[T]hough 23 the Alexa Sign in page may afford notice of Alexa’s Terms, it does not necessarily afford notice 24 of Audible’s [Conditions of Use].”).⁷ Here, by contrast, a single corporate entity—Uber—plainly

 26 ⁷ In addition, McKee concluded that the defendants’ “sign-in-wrap, or clickwrap” agreement did 27 not suffice to establish mutual assent to the arbitration clause at issue because it failed to put 28 reasonable consumers on notice of “any contractual consequences to clicking th[e] particular button,” and was plagued by “linguistic imprecision” and “small, undifferentiated font.” Id. at 1 stated that its TOU applied to all of its “services,” including “connection to … drivers.”

 2 Sauerwein Decl. Ex. A, at 3. On its face, Uber’s terms “afford notice” that they apply to all of 3 Uber’s services, so McKee is inapposite. 2017 WL 4685039, at *11.

4 3. A.R. I assented to the Terms of Use and never disaffirmed

5 Plaintiffs assert that Plaintiff A.R. 1 is not bound by the TOU because she assented as a 6 minor. Opp. 20. But if A.R. 1 indeed assented as a minor, she violated the TOU. See Sauerwein 7 Decl. Ex. A, at 8 (“You must be at least 18 years of age … to obtain an Account.”). And 8 regardless, Plaintiffs are wrong that A.R. 1’s minority voids her assent. In Pennsylvania, 9 “[c]ontracts of a minor, other than contracts for necessities, are voidable by the minor, not void.”
 10 Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. v. Duncan, 972 F.2d 523, 526 (3d Cir. 1992) (emphasis added); see 11 Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 14. “This means that a minor can render a contract a nullity 12 by disaffirming it at any point up until a reasonable time after the minor attains his or her 13 majority”— “[i]t does not mean a contract with a minor is a nullity prior to any such 14 disaffirmance.” Aetna, 972 F.2d at 526. Plaintiffs identify no evidence that A.R. 1 has 15 disaffirmed her TOU, or that a “reasonable time” remains to do so. Cf. Campbell v. Sears, 16 Roebuck & Co., 161 A. 310, 312 (Pa. 1932) (“thirteen months” not “reasonable time … to 17 disaffirm”); see Greer ex rel. Greer v. Penn Cent. Transp. Co., 1981 WL 207409 (Pa. Common 18 Pleas Apr. 20, 1981) (“more than one year” not reasonable). A.R. 1 remains bound by the TOU.

19 4. The clause is not vague as applied to WHB 318 or C.L.

20 Nor are Plaintiffs correct when they assert that the TOU are “vague” as to two Plaintiffs 21 whose rides crossed state lines. Opp. 20. Again, the TOU are clear: Plaintiffs agreed to litigate 22 against Uber in “the state or federal courts in the state in which the incident or accident occurred.”
 23 Sauerwein Decl. Ex. A, at 14. Plaintiffs know where their injuries allegedly occurred, and the 24 forum-selection clause unambiguously states that they must litigate in those forums.

25 For WHB 318, the analysis is straightforward. She alleges that she was assaulted “[a]fter

26 27 *8-10. The “clickwrap” process for assenting to Uber’s TOU, by contrast, suffers from none of 28 these flaws, Mot. at 7-8; nor do Plaintiffs contend otherwise.

1 the ride had crossed into North Carolina.” W.H.B. 318, Am. Compl. ¶ 9. So the proper venue is 2 North Carolina. As for C.L., her ride allegedly traversed Maryland and Virginia, but she does not 3 allege in which of those States her independent driver’s alleged misconduct occurred. C.L., Am.
 4 Compl. ¶ 5. C.L. is positioned to know the answer to that question, and should elect venue 5 accordingly; if she is unsure, Uber is willing for her to litigate in either forum. But C.L. cannot 6 simply avoid the forum-selection clause through imprecisely pleading place of injury—otherwise, 7 any Plaintiff could decline to allege place-of-injury, and circumvent the agreement by strategic 8 omission. Just because C.L.’s place-of-injury allegations may be vague does not render her 9 forum-selection clause impermissibly vague—on the contrary, courts routinely adjudicate place 10 of injury as part of the default common-law choice-of-law analysis. See supra at 2, 8.

11 Plaintiffs’ authorities only underscore the weakness of their argument. In Omega IM 12 Group, LLC v. Louidar, LLC, the forum-selection clause placed the venue determination “at the 13 sole and absolute discretion of Omega’s counsel.” 2018 WL 1069446, at *7 (S.D. Fla. Feb. 16, 14 2018). Neither party retains such “absolute discretion” under the forum-selection clause here. In 15 Intelligent Business Innovations, LLC v. Alliance Computing, Inc., 2016 WL 4524722 (E.D.
 16 Mich. Aug. 29, 2016), the clause provided that the contract would be “enforced according to the 17 laws of the state of Florida, Orange County, Orlando and any dispute under this Agreement must 18 be brought in this venue and no other,” and so failed to “give any direction as to the appropriate 19 court or level of court.” Id. at *4. And in ZPC 2000, Inc. v. SCA Group, Inc., 86 F. Supp. 2d 274 20 (S.D.N.Y. 2000), the clause “refer[red] obliquely to the ‘Court of New York’ and d[id] not 21 distinguish between state and federal courts, or between districts within the state.” Id. at 277.
 22 Here, by contrast, the forum-selection clause specifies an easily ascertainable venue: the “state or 23 federal courts in the State in which the incident or accident occurred.” Sauerwein Decl. Ex. A, at 24 14. So the problems in Plaintiffs’ cited cases are entirely absent here.

25 5. A.G. is bound by the Terms of Use she signed.

26 Finally, Plaintiffs assert that A.G. is not bound by the TOU she signed for her own 27 account because the particular ride during which she was allegedly assaulted was requested 28

1 through her ex-husband's account. Opp. 21. Again, the TOU foreclose this argument.

2 A.G. undisputedly agreed to a forum-selection clause that governs "any dispute, claim, or 3 controversy arising out of or relating to incidents or accidents resulting in personal injury ... that

4 you allege occurred in connection with your use of the Services." Sauerwein Decl. Ex. A, at 13-5 14. Plaintiff asserts that she was sexually assaulted during an Uber-facilitated ride. That ride was 6 a "use" of Uber's "Services"—defined to include "services rendered by Uber that facilitate your

7 connection to independent third party providers, including drivers ... for the purchase of services

8 or goods, such as transportation"—regardless whose Uber account was used to request the ride.

9 Id. at 3. And while Plaintiffs assert that A.G. did not herself "purchase ... transportation," Opp.

10 21 (ellipsis in original), that makes no difference: Uber facilitated A.G.'s connection to a driver—

11 a "service" under the TOU A.G. signed—regardless of who "purchase[d]" the services or which 12 account they used to pay. In addition, A.G. would still be equitably estopped to the terms of her

13 ex-husband's agreement with Uber.⁸ "The 'direct benefits' requirement of the equitable estoppel 14 analysis requires a nonsignatory to have obtained a benefit flowing directly from an agreement."

15 Eclipse Consulting, Inc. v. BDO USA, LLP, 2018 WL 6735085, at *8 (D. Or. Nov. 13, 2018).⁹

16 A.G. received just such a benefit—a ride—here. See Hofer v. Emley, 2019 WL 4575389, at *6

17 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 20, 2019) ("Jonathan Hofer knowingly received a direct benefit as a result of the 18 Agreement—the ability to travel as a passenger in a rental car to visit family for Thanksgiving.").

19 Having benefited from Uber's services, she cannot avoid the TOU directly through her own 20 account or from the use of services through her husband's account.

21 III. CONCLUSION

22 For the foregoing reasons, the Court should grant the motion to transfer and enter the 23 proposed order.

24

25 ⁸ As Plaintiffs recognize (Opp. 21 n.12), the ex-husband must have agreed to the Terms of Use in 26 order to facilitate the relevant ride.

27 ⁹ Plaintiffs claim that this case does not apply Oregon law, Opp. 21, but the decision makes clear 28 that the relevant agreement was to be "enforced in all respects in accordance with the laws of the State of Oregon," Eclipse Consulting, 2018 WL 6735085, at *2.
